

Walker Trieschman Center Workforce Competition Submission Form

CWLA and the Walker Trieschman Center (Walker) announce in partnership a call for papers for a new competition focusing on workforce development. Recognizing workforce development as an ongoing priority for CWLA and its member agencies, this competition seeks to identify effective innovations in workforce development practices, recognize the developers of those innovations, and encourage best practice by sharing information about these workforce innovations throughout the child welfare field. Papers describing successful practices within the public and private sectors of child welfare will be accepted.

The competition will focus on two crucial areas of workforce development: leadership training and leadership development, broadly defined; and the development and support of front-line child welfare workers.

To submit papers:

Papers for the 2011 competition are due by September 24, 2010. Electronic “soft” copies of papers are strongly preferred, and can be e-mailed to CRainey@CWLA.org. Please direct questions to Cassandra Rainey at the e-mail address above, or call her at 703-412-3169 or 718-828-0300, ext. 298.

This submission form requires signatures on both pages. Please fax signed, completed forms to Cassandra Rainey at 718-409-3101.

We look forward to reviewing your submissions, and will be in touch within three to four weeks after the deadline. Thank you!

Author’s Permission to Publish:

As a participant in the Walker Trieschman Center Workforce Competition, I understand that by submitting this paper I allow CWLA to use and/or publish my name and contact information, employment affiliation, the submitted paper, and my statements for public relations and promotion. I understand the paper may be included in a CWLA publication.
